Latest issue of The Osteopath now available

18 February 2010

The February/March issue of The Osteopath magazine is now available.

The leading article is the 2009 fitness to practise report and the issue also includes updates on a number of current initiatives including the development of a revalidation scheme; forthcoming revised osteopathic practice standards; and developing a scope of practice.

Other articles include:

- CPD today;
- the OPEn project;
- review of quality assurance processes for osteopathic training courses;
- reciprocal arrangements with Australia and New Zealand;
- research news;
- volunteering at the 2012 Olympic and paralympic games.

The Osteopath magazine is published 6 times a year and all UK registered osteopaths receive a printed copy.

Osteopathy students in the UK can buy an annual subscription for £17.00, while the cost to other readers is £24.00 within the UK; £34.00 in Europe; and £47.00 elsewhere in the world. Click here to download a subscription form.
