Graham Sharman is a long standing GOSc registration assessor and is currently Vice Principal at the European School of Osteopathy. He is an Osteopathy Recognised Qualification (RQ) QAA visitor, external examiner and also has a role advising on osteopathy degree collaborations.

Having graduated from the British School of Osteopathy (BSO) in 1991, Graham led the implementation of the BSO's Extended Pathway Programme and later left to take up a post at the London School of Osteopathy (LSO), where he helped the LSO prepare for its first RQ accreditation.

He went to work for the GOSc where, as Head of Education his main focus was the M/PPP and RQ accreditation processes. Graham then took up an osteopathy programme lead post at Oxford Brookes University and was subsequently Director of Pre-qualifying Learning & Development.

Later he re-joined the BSO and became Head of Post Graduate Studies & Osteopathic Knowledge, where his main focus was curriculum development.
