

General
Osteopathic
Council

Jo Clarkson

Jo qualified from the British School of Osteopathy (BSO) in 1987, and has been in full time practice since then, working with a team of six other osteopaths across two practices. Jo was a clinical and technique tutor at the BSO for ten years after qualifying, and has taught osteopathic technique at undergraduate and postgraduate level in the UK, Scandinavia and elsewhere in Europe.

She chaired the maternity services liaison committee at her local general hospital, and sat on both the preliminary investigation and ethics committees for the General Council and Register of Osteopaths (GCRO), before becoming an external examiner for the General Osteopathic Council. She has also acted as an external examiner for validating bodies, such as the University of Wales, the Open University, as well as various other osteopathic education institutions in the UK, Europe and New Zealand.
